

Allow Time Matters to prompt you to save an outgoing email to Time Matters.

Prompt to Save a Sent Email

Time Matters can automatically prompt you to save an Outlook email to Time Matters right after you send it.

This option makes a big difference in how easy it is to organize and access outgoing emails for all your matters, clients and contacts. By collecting your sent and received emails and linking them to Matters and Contacts in Time Matters, you can quickly access a trail of emails you need to review.

The Connect as Email button in Outlook lets you save incoming emails to Time Matters one-at-a-time. By Control-Clicking multiple email for a particular Matter, the Connect as Email button lets you save them all to a Matter.

Step-by-step instructions for saving sent emails are found here:

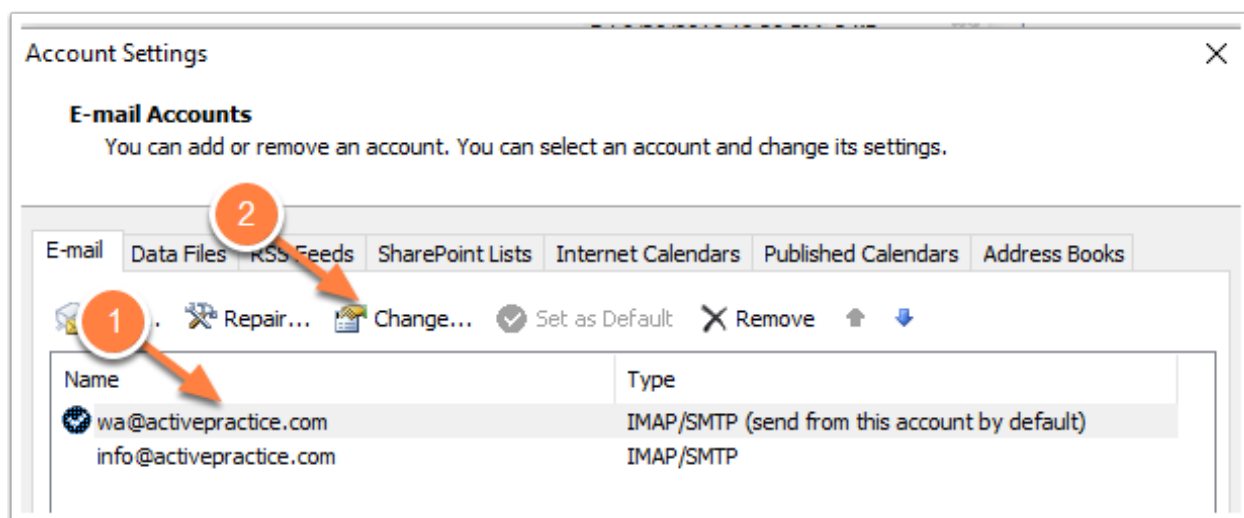

<https://www.activepractice.com/posts/outlook-prompt-to-save-to-time-matters/>

But this option might not work unless you change an additional setting in Outlook. If you choose the option to prompt to save but it does not work, follow the instructions, below, to fix the issue.

Sent Items Setting

In Outlook, go to:

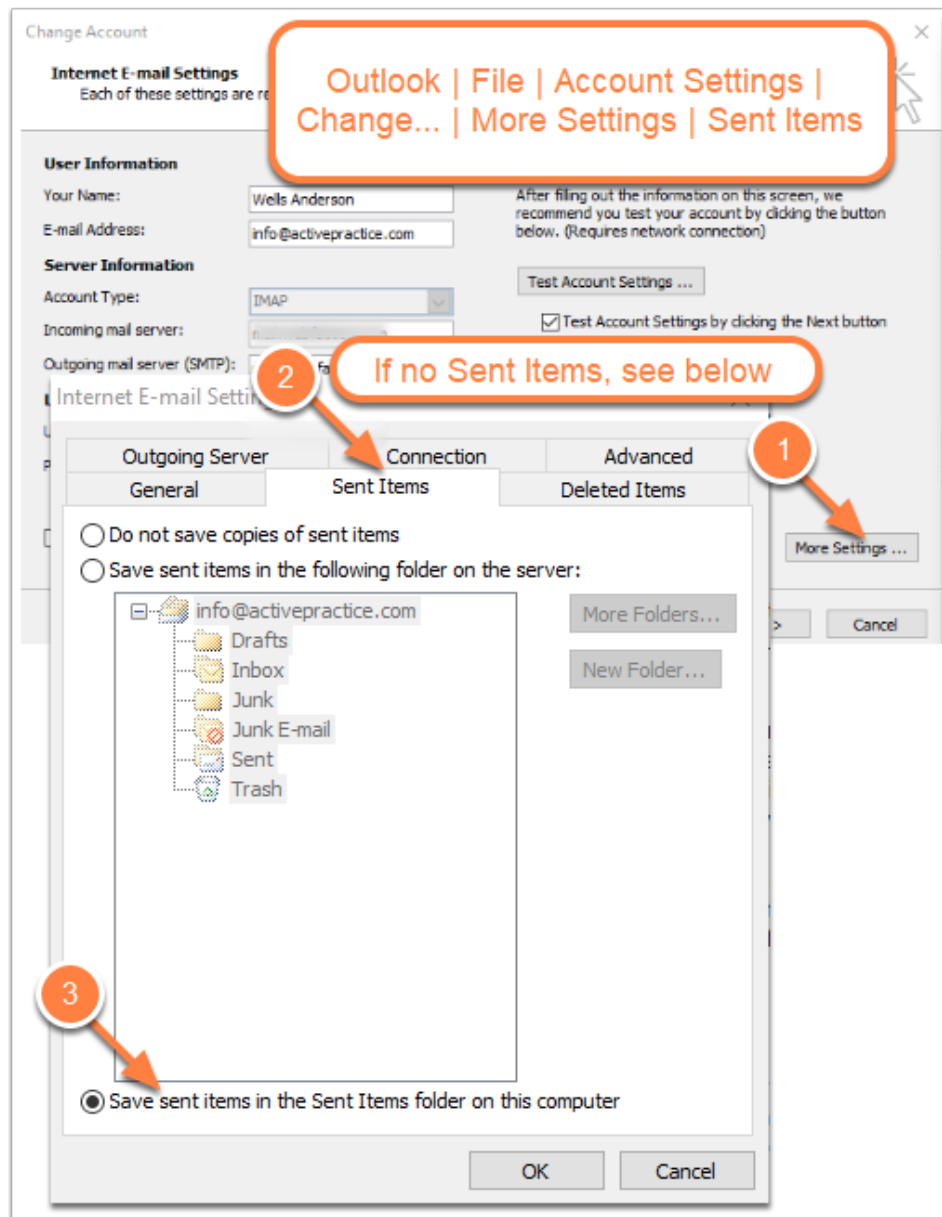

- File | Account Settings | Account Settings...
1. Select your email account
 2. Click: Change...

Sent Items Setting

Caveat: Microsoft Outlook has many different settings and works with a variety of types of email accounts. I recommend backing up your computer and backing up your Outlook data files before changing settings.

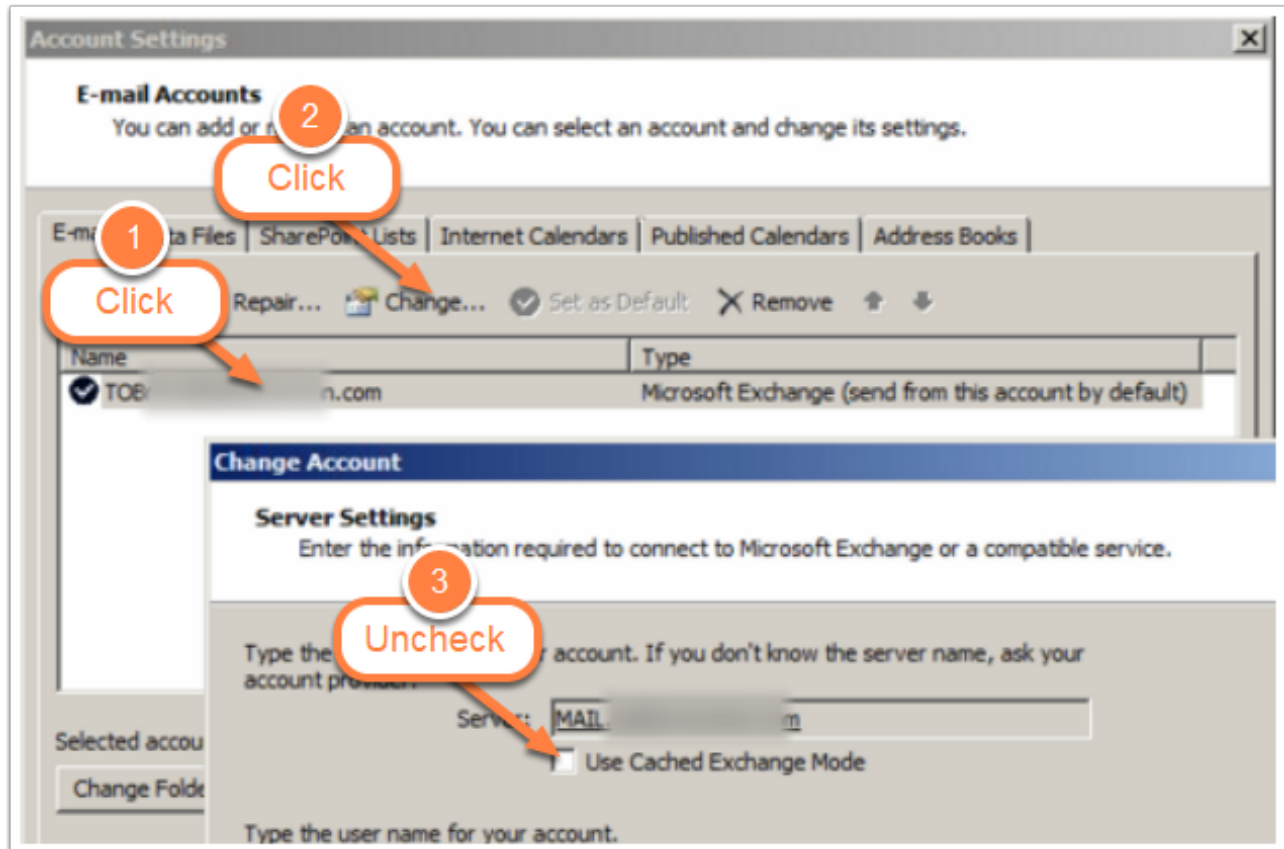

1. Click: More Settings...
2. Click: Sent Items
3. Click: Save Sent Items in the Sent Items folder on this computer

For Exchange Uncheck Use Cached Exchange Mode

If the Sent Items tab does not appear as shown in the previous step, above, you probably use MS Exchange.

For MS Exchange, the Time Matters Prompt to Save feature will work if you uncheck "Use Cached Exchange Mode". See the screenshot, below.

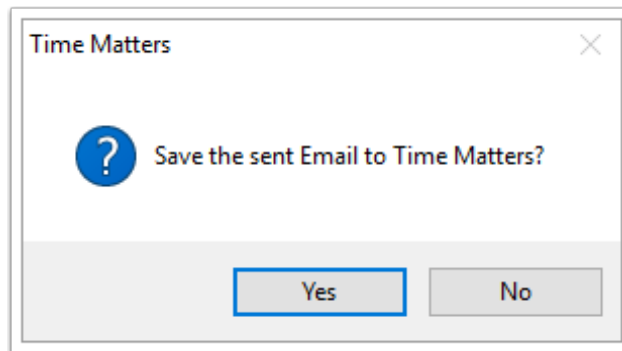

Saving an Email

With these settings, you will be prompted to save your email to Time Matters after you send it.

A Time Matters email form appears with the Date, Subject, Staff, From, To, and Message are all completed. You just choose a Matter or a Contact and press Save & Close.

Note: This setting may cause your Sent Emails in Outlook to be saved to a different Sent folder in the Outlook folder tree. I was thrown for a loop when I couldn't find any new Sent Emails in Outlook after making the change. I recovered my composure when I found them in a Sent folder in a parent folder named Outlook Data File.

Here is the prompt that will appear each time you send an email from Outlook:

Author

Wells H. Anderson, J.D.

CEO - Active Practice LLC

952-922-1120

Expert assistance with practice management applications